Mr. Midshipman Hornblower Summary

Mr. Midshipman Hornblower is set in 1793, during the early years of the Napoleonic Wars. Hornblower is a young man from a poor family who has joined the Royal Navy as a midshipman. He is assigned to the HMS Justinian, a 74-gun ship of the line. Hornblower is initially overwhelmed by the size and complexity of the ship, but he quickly learns the ropes and becomes a valuable member of the crew.

The Justinian is sent to the Mediterranean Sea, where it is tasked with blockading the French port of Toulon. Hornblower experiences his first taste of combat during a fierce battle with a French frigate. He proves himself to be a brave and resourceful officer, and he is promoted to lieutenant.

The Justinian is later sent to the Caribbean Sea, where it is involved in a series of operations against the Spanish and French. Hornblower continues to distinguish himself in battle, and he is eventually promoted to commander. He is given command of his own ship, the HMS Sutherland, and he leads it to victory in several important battles.

Mr. Midshipman Hornblower is a classic naval adventure story. It is full of action, suspense, and historical detail. Hornblower is a complex and compelling character, and readers will find themselves rooting for him as he faces the challenges of naval life.
